Part I Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

Enter your TIN in the average left box. The TIN provided must match the name given on line 1 to avoid being considered delinquent. For individuals, this is generally a year-to-year assigned Social Security Number. For a trust, alien, non-proprietor, or partnership entity, use the instructions for Part I, below. For other entities, it is your employer's identification number (EIN). If you do not have a number, see the instructions for Part I, above.

Part II Certification

Under penalty of perjury, I certify that:

- The number shown on this form is my correct taxpayer identification number (or I am writing for a number to be issued to me); and
- I am not subject to backup withholding because I am exempt from backup withholding or I do not have backup withholding imposed on me. If you are subject to backup withholding as a result of a failure to report all interest or dividends, or if the IRS has notified you that you are no longer subject to backup withholding, and
- I am a U.S. citizen or other U.S. person (defined below); and
- The FATCA coding appears on this form if any, indicating that I am exempt from FATCA reporting to certain countries.

Purpose of Form

An individual or entity (Form W-9 requester) who is required to file an information return on the IRS form should send a completed signed Form W-9 (with any fee) to the person or entity whose identifying number (EIN, Social Security Number, or other identification number) is to be reported on the information return. Examples of information returns include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Forms 1099-INT (interest) and so on;
- Form 1099-DIV (dividends, including those from stocks or mutual funds);
- Form 1099-NEC (wages, salaries, tips, commissions, or other payments);
- Form 1099-B (stock or mutual fund sales and certain other transactions);
- Form 1099-C (canceled debt);
- Form 1099-A (acquisition or abandonment of secured property).

Use Form W-9 only if you are a U.S. person (including a trust) and, to provide your correct TIN.

If you do not return Form W-9 to the requester with a TIN, you might be subject to backup withholding. See What to Include Withholding.
